Integrated Language Skills: Support for Writing a Reflective Composition

Think about a piece of literature or an artwork that you particularly admire. What makes it linger in your mind? What new ideas does it inspire? Use the chart to organize your thoughts for your composition. First, list some memorable details about the piece of literature or the artwork. For each detail, describe briefly why it made an impression on you or what you learned from it.

Memorable Detail From an Artwork	What I Learned/Why It Impressed Me

Now, use your notes to generate main ideas, which you will support with details for your draft as a journal entry, letter, review, or memoir.
